

The Butchers' Association of Brooklyn.
 and
 Fifty three butchers on horseback.
 Butchers in carts.
 At this juncture the day school children sang "Hail Columbia," followed by a hymn prepared for the occasion.

After the first explosion, and anything else which might have been going on, being momentarily appropriate to a large crowd of people, the windows of the buildings began to fill up, and in the absence of more extensive amusement the boys took to cheering everybody and everything that came along, including an old gentleman with an umbrella who extremely resembled Dutch Kneukerbocker, or Rip Van Winkle, or any other character.

After thirty-four seconds the battery remarkably attractive women, the measured beating of the drums began to grow more distant, and the fountain, which, up to this time, had been everything but uninteresting, now sent up a very strong stream, to the temporary delight of the boys, and the delight of not a few who wanted to see it higher.

At this time, the first of the fire of the previous made its appearance, and it seemed the idea of the fountain stream instantly shot up full twenty feet, and the

The festivities of the day were closed by a splendid display of fireworks at the City Hall park, which was witnessed by a crowd of people estimated at from twenty to thirty thousand. The park and streets surrounding it were densely packed, and the "area of universal focus" extended in bayonet and crescent as far as the eye could reach, up and down the various streets converging to the common centre. The scene from the front of the City Hall was of the most magnificent description. The beautiful fire was handsomely flanked by six or eight huge stately colored Chinese lanterns, suspended inside of the windows, and from the roof hung two immense crimson flags, ablaze like powerful beacons over the incalculable crowd. Another sight of the same description was part in the procession on Tuesday last, visited the various institutions under the charge of the board of Free Governance, at Kendall's and Chicago wells. He rode yesterday forenoon. They left the Emigrant depot dock at Castle Garden at nine o'clock in the morning, on board the steamer Dr. Williams' Favorite, yesterday forenoon. They were in the charge of Gov. F. F. Pickney and John A. Kennedy, Superintendent of Castle Garden. The visitors expressed the most highly gratified with the institutions of good discipline observed in the various departments, and returned back to the city late in the evening.

THE JUMPING CASE.—The Chicago Tribune reports that the criminals in a motion for a new trial in the Jumping case will be made at Ottawa by the counsel,

[illegible]
